College of Agriculture and Life Sciences

Students:

The College of Agriculture & Life Sciences invites you to attend TWO separate engaging events designed to explore the topic of RACE and RACISM as part of our College Conversations Series. Please forward this to other students who you think would be interested in attending these events.

On March 8 at 6 PM in the AgriLife Center, Dr. Joe Feagin will lead an interactive discussion on race based on his book, Two-Faced Racism. Participants will examine the racial attitudes and behaviors displayed by college students around the nation in private settings. Dr. Feagin is recognized as a leader on the topic of racism and sexism and has served as the scholar in residence at the US Commission on Civil Rights.

On April 13 at 6 PM in the Gates Ballroom (2400 MSC), Dr. Tanya Williams will lead an interactive, reflective session where students will build a common definition of race and racism and explore the ongoing realities of race and racism in our everyday lives. Additionally, participants will identify and explore strategies and effective ways to partner across identity to help create a community that is accessible for all.

DINNER will be served at BOTH events.

Registration is FREE and NOW OPEN:
