- Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas, Ph.D. Agricultural Economics, 2005.

EXPERIENCE

Position Appointment

- 100% Extension – Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service

Position Description

- Director, Center for North American Studies, Professor and Extension Economist – International Trade and Transportation, Texas A&M AgriLife Extension and Texas A&M Transportation Institute, College Station, Texas, August 2014 to present.

Primary responsibilities are statewide. Major responsibilities include providing information, analysis, training, and teaching materials to strengthen the educational programs in international trade, trade policy and transportation for County Extension Agents, producer committees and stakeholders in the agricultural industry. Additionally, Dr. Ribera has added responsibilities in the area of biofuels, carbon sequestration, technology transfer and organic production.

- Member, Vegetable and Fruit Improvement Center (VFIC), Texas A&M University, March 2012 to present.

Dr. Ribera is the lead production economist for the VFIC. Main responsibilities are to develop risk-based economic feasibility analysis for horticultural crops, such as new varieties, different cropping systems, adoption of new technology, and competitiveness in the global market.

- Program Director for International Projects, Agricultural and Food Policy Center (AFPC), Texas A&M University, January 2007 to present.

Dr. Ribera is in charge of international projects for the AFPC. Main responsibilities are to develop partnerships with agricultural agencies internationally in the areas of agricultural policy and economic feasibility.

Past Positions and Experiences

- Associate Professor and Extension Economist – Management, District 12, Texas A&M AgriLife Extension, Weslaco, Texas, September 2011 to July 2014.

This position was 100% Extension appointment. Primary responsibilities were to the 20-county area of the South district. Major responsibilities included providing information, training, and teaching materials to strengthen the educational programs in farm management for County Extension Agents and producer committees. Due to the wide variety of agricultural industries in District 12, Dr. Ribera worked consistently with fellow Extension Specialists, County Agents and Experiment Station Researchers on multidisciplinary programs. Additionally, Dr. Ribera had added responsibilities in the area of biofuels, carbon sequestration, organic production and international market integration.

- Assistant Professor and Extension Economist-Management, District 12, Texas AgriLife Extension, Weslaco, Texas, July 2005 to August 2011
- Graduate Research Assistant, Agricultural and Food Policy Center, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas, 2001 to 2005.

Led an international research project on in-site cotton production economics in the five South American countries of Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Colombia and Paraguay. Facilitate linkages on Latin American projects; pursue research on technology transfer in Bolivian, Chilean and Peruvian agriculture and agricultural policy. Worked with the Bolivian Ministry of Agriculture and the Agricultural Committee of the Lower House in an effort to create a center to analyze agricultural policy in Bolivia.

- Production System Analyst, Natural Resource Management International, Fayetteville, Arkansas, 2000 to 2001.

Developed economic parameters and risk management models of various commercial crops using Bolivian production methods for comparison to other systems.

Language Proficiency

- Bilingual (written & spoken knowledge) - English and Spanish.
- Working knowledge of Portuguese.

EXTENSION ACTIVITIES

Percentage of time budgeted on Extension – 100%

Percentage of time spent on Extension – 70%

Program Statement

Dr. Ribera has been employed by Texas A&M AgriLife Extension as a specialist since July 2005. Initially, Dr. Ribera's primary job responsibilities were in the area of crop farm management and risk analysis in District 12. Currently, Dr. Ribera is the International Trade and Transportation Specialist as well as the Director of the Center for North American Studies.

The international trade landscape presents additional opportunities and challenges for local producers and agribusinesses, such as expanded market opportunities, increased competition, and sanitary and phytosanitary issues. From 2007 to 2010, Dr. Ribera coordinated workshops, along with Dr. Ron Knutson, for the North America Agrifood Market Integration Consortium and the CAFTA-DR Agrifood Market Integration Consortium. The objective of these workshops was to foster agricultural market integration and minimize friction among trading partners through harmonization of policies, programs, and regulations. Since then, Dr. Ribera has been working extensively in the area on international agricultural trade mainly on specialty crops. Moreover, in 2007 Dr. Ribera was named Program Director for International Projects for the Agricultural and Food Policy Center, adding even more responsibilities on the international arena.

Summary of Program Development

- International Trade – During his time in the Lower Rio Grande Valley (LRGV), Dr. Ribera has worked on several international trade issues, such as invasive species and pest coming from Mexico, the increase in inflow of Mexican produce by truck through the LRGV and along the U.S./Mexico border, immigration labor and water issues with between Mexico and U.S. on the usage of irrigation water from the Rio Grande. From 2006 to 2008, Dr. Ribera, along with Dr. Knutson, coordinated three market integration workshops, two for the NAFTA region and one for the CAFTA region. In each workshop approximately 60 country delegates from the government, industry and academia participated. Topics covered in the workshop included barriers to trade, sanitary and phytosanitary issues, country of origin labeling, transition policies towards freer trade, building successful supply chains, among others. A policy panel closed each workshop, where policy makers from each country discussed the changes that needed to happen in order to increase trade among trading bloc members. In 2014 Dr. Ribera moved to College Station and is currently working on economics impacts of increase produce imports from Mexico, food safety, potential increase trade with Cuba, impacts of new trade agreements, mainly Trans Pacific Partnership and Trans-Atlantic Trade and Investment Partnership.

Dr. Ribera has nine international trade or trade related journal articles, three Extension publications, 12 AgriLife Centers or other publications and two book chapters. In addition, since his move to College Station, Dr. Ribera has given 20 presentations on International Trade and Transportation.

- Farm and Risk Management – During his time in the LRGV, Dr. Ribera has worked with row crop producers, mainly cotton, grain sorghum, corn, and sugarcane. Dr. Ribera was invited several times to give presentations on crop market outlook, variety selection and crop budgets. Dr. Ribera's expertise on risk and portfolio analysis helped producers to better understand the principles of portfolio analysis and applied them to variety and/or crop mixes. He has published a journal article and several extension reports on how to use portfolio analysis to manage variety selection. The W.R. Cowley Sugar House has changed the format of presenting productivity and profitability reports to its constituents due to the work that Dr. Ribera did for them on risk management.
- Organic and Locally Grown Farm Management – Dr. Ribera has worked with socially disadvantaged farmers and beginner farmers in District 12. He has provided crop budgeting and financial analysis support to the Grow'n Growers program, an AgriLife Extension program that teaches low-income residents how to grow organic vegetables on their own properties, then sell them at the area's only organic farmers market. In addition, he has provided training on how to create an agricultural cooperative under the same Grow'n Growers program that resulted in the establishment of a farmers' cooperative known as Familias Productores del Valle, or Family Producers of the Valley. Also, Dr. Ribera works with the Texas Rural Cooperative Center of the University of Texas PanAmerican and the Texas/Mexico Boarder Coalition with programs that target socially disadvantaged and beginner farmers in South Texas. In 2009, Dr. Ribera lead a multidisciplinary team to develop the Small Acreage Business Workshop Series, a set of four workshops that covers topics such as production, government funding and programs, food safety, and business planning and marketing. Since 2009, Dr. Ribera's team has had 53 workshop/trainings on small acreage production. In 2013, Dr. Ribera worked with the Women's Business Center conducting the four-workshop series to female entrepreneurs. Finally, from 2011 to 2014 through two federal grants, the small acreage production initiative awarded eight scholarships per year for three years to South Texas College (STC) and Texas A&M at San Antonio students to work on small acreage organic production techniques and wildlife management.

- Carbon Markets/Climate Change – Dr. Ribera has worked on carbon markets due to increased concerns regarding climate change. Two extension reports and a journal article were written on how farmers and ranchers can benefit from the carbon markets. Moreover, Dr. Ribera has been invited 14 times to give presentations on the economics of carbon markets and climate change policy. He has published one journal article, four proceedings and extension, and one book review on the subject. Moreover, Dr. Ribera has coordinated one workshop to train county agents on carbon markets/climate change.

Teaching Effectiveness and Quality

Evidence of Demands for Programs

The following is a list of presentations, planning meetings and conferences from August 1, 2014 to July 28, 2021. This section is provided as an indication of the frequency and scope of extension programming presentations, program development meetings, and conferences. All presentations involved development of handout materials resulting from applied research, except when noted. Number of attendees for each presentation or workshop for clientele is summarized in Appendix 1. Dr. Ribera delivered all presentations summarized below.

Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent or as a percentage gained in knowledge. Percentage participants that anticipate a positive economic benefit as a direct result of the information presented at the workshop.

1. Ribera, Luis A. “Prioritizing Transportation Infrastructure Investments: Agricultural Supply Chains.” USDA-AMS project, San Diego, California, June 18, 2018. Attendance 27. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training was valuable (4.0), increased opportunity to network (4.0), and overall satisfaction of the program (4.2). 56% of participants anticipate benefiting economically.

2. Ribera, Luis A. “Prioritizing Transportation Infrastructure Investments: Agricultural Supply Chains.” USDA-AMS project, Tucson, Arizona, May 31, 2018. Attendance 31. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training was valuable (4.42), increased opportunity to network (4.37), and overall satisfaction of the program (4.1). 63% of participants anticipate benefiting economically.
3. Ribera, Luis A. “Prioritizing Transportation Infrastructure Investments: Agricultural Supply Chains.” USDA-AMS project, Laredo, Texas, May 16, 2018. Attendance 23. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training was valuable (4.85), increased opportunity to network (4.75), and overall satisfaction of the program (4.8). 77% of participants anticipate benefiting economically.
4. Ribera, Luis A. “Business Planning and Marketing for Small Acreage Producers.” Small Acreage Business Series, Weslaco, Texas, November 20, 2013. Attendance 21. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.5), information being useful (4.7), plan to adopt what was learned (4.6), quality of course materials (4.3), and overall satisfaction of the program (4.7).
5. Anciso, Juan and Luis A. Ribera “Food Safety for Small Acreage Producers.” Small Acreage Business Series, Weslaco, Texas, November 6, 2013. Attendance 20. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.7), information being useful (4.6), plan to adopt what was learned (4.6), quality of course materials (4.5), and overall satisfaction of the program (4.4).
6. Ribera, Luis A. “Programs and Funding for Small Acreage Producers.” Small Acreage Business Series, Weslaco, Texas, October 23, 2013. Attendance 32. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.7), information being useful (4.8), plan to adopt what was learned (4.4), quality of course materials (4.7), and overall satisfaction of the program (4.7).
7. Ribera, Luis A., Juan Anciso, and Raul Villanueva. “Vegetable Production for Small Acreage Producers.” Small Acreage Business Series, Weslaco, Texas, October 9, 2013. Attendance 35. Evaluation

summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.8), information being useful (4.7), plan to adopt what was learned (4.9), quality of course materials (4.6), and overall satisfaction of the program (4.9).

8. Ribera, Luis A. “Business Planning for Small Acreage.” Weslaco, Texas, August 8, 2013. Attendance 20. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.5), information being useful (4.6), plan to adopt what was learned (4.6), quality of course materials (4.4), and overall satisfaction of the program (4.8).
9. Ribera, Luis A. “Economics and Life-Cycle Analysis of Lignocellulosic Biofuel Production from Energy Cane.” Webinar, Weslaco, Texas, June 4, 2013. Attendance 40. Post survey respondents indicated having a knowledge level of 2.73 at the beginning of the webinar and after the webinar it was 3.18 on a 1-4 scale with 1 being non existent and 4 being considerable (17% knowledge gained). Participants indicated that 63% plan to possibly adopt this information in the next 12 months. The number of acres potentially impacted by those adopting this information is 2,385 acres. Economic value assign to the information received per response was $157. The total value for those responding was $1,731.
10. Ribera, Luis A. “Business Planning for Small Acreage.” Weslaco, Texas, March 28, 2013. Attendance 29. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.5), information being useful (4.3), plan to adopt what was learned (4.5), and quality of course materials (4.4). A pre and post evaluation showed that there was a 72% increase in knowledge as a direct result of the workshop. In addition, 100% of respondents anticipate a positive economic benefit as a direct result of the information presented at the workshop.
11. Ribera, Luis A., Marco Palma, Francisco Abello, and Barbara Storz. “Small Acreage Marketing Workshop.” Weslaco, Texas, August 24, 2012. Attendance 26. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.6), information being useful (4.7), plan to adopt what was learned (4.1), and quality of course materials (4.3). In addition, 91% of respondents anticipate a positive economic benefit as a direct result of the information presented at the workshop.
12. Anciso, Juan, and Luis A. Ribera. “Vegetable Production for Small Acreage Producers.” Crystal City, Texas, May 22, 2012. Attendance: 10. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.8), information being useful (4.3), plan to adopt what was learned (4.7), and quality of course materials (4.5). In addition, 100% of respondents anticipate a positive economic benefit as a direct result of the information presented at the workshop.

13. Ribera, Luis A. “Economic Analysis of Small Acreage Vegetable Production in South Texas.” McAllen, Texas, February 11, 2012. Attendance: 72. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.1), information being useful (4.6), overall evaluation of training (4.9), recommend this training to others (5.0).
14. Anciso, Juan, and Luis A. Ribera. Texas Food Safety Traceability and Recall Workshop 2011, South Padre Island, Texas, August 17, 2011. Attendance: 90. A pre and post evaluation showed that there was an 18% increase in knowledge as a direct result of the conference. Level of satisfaction from all sessions in the conference ranged from 4.2 to 4.5 based on a 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. In addition, 100% of respondents felt that the workshop will increase the awareness and implementation of food safety practices in Texas.
15. Ribera, Luis A. and Juan Anciso. “Funding for Small Acreage Producers.” San Antonio, Texas, June 7, 2011. Attendance: 22. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (3.9), information being useful (4.4), plan to adopt what was learned (4.4). A pre and post evaluation showed that there was a 29% increase in knowledge as a direct result of the workshop. In addition, 100% of respondents anticipate a positive economic benefit as a direct result of the information presented at the workshop.
16. Anciso, Juan, Joe Masabni, and Luis A. Ribera. “Food Safety (GAPs) for Small Acreage Producers.” San Antonio, Texas, May 17, 2011. Attendance: 13. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.6), information being useful (4.8), plan to adopt what was learned (4.6). A pre and post evaluation showed that there was a 100% increase in knowledge as a direct result of the workshop. In addition, 100% of respondents anticipate a positive economic benefit as a direct result of the information presented at the workshop.
17. Anciso, Juan, and Luis A. Ribera. Texas Food Safety Conference 2011, Austin, Texas, May 10-11, 2011. Attendance: 159. A pre and post evaluation showed that there was a 31% increase in knowledge as a direct result of the conference. Level of satisfaction from all sessions in the conference ranged from 3.7 to 4.2 based on a 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. In addition, 100% of respondents felt that the conference will increase the awareness and implementation of food safety practices in Texas.

18. Ribera, Luis A., Marco Palma, Greg Clary and Bryan Davis. "Business Planning and Marketing." San Antonio, Texas, May 3, 2011. Attendance: 19. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.5), information being useful (4.8), plan to adopt what was learned (4.4). A pre and post evaluation showed that there was a 36% increase in knowledge as a direct result of the workshop. In addition, 100% of respondents anticipate a positive economic benefit as a direct result of the information presented at the workshop.
19. Anciso, Juan, Luis A. Ribera, Larry Stein, David Rodriguez, and Bryan Davis. "Vegetable Production for Small Acreage." San Antonio, Texas, April 19, 2011. Attendance: 28. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.5), information being useful (4.5), plan to adopt what was learned (4.3). A pre and post evaluation showed that there was a 55% increase in knowledge as a direct result of the workshop. In addition, 88% of respondents anticipate a positive economic benefit as a direct result of the information presented at the workshop.
20. Ribera, Luis A., Marco Palma, and Juan Anciso. "Budgeting and Business Planning Workshop for Small Acreage." Weslaco, Texas, November 19, 2010. Attendance: 33. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.4), information being useful (4.4), plan to adopt what was learned (4.4). A pre and post evaluation showed that there was a 41% increase in knowledge as a direct result of the workshop. In addition, 100% of respondents anticipate a positive economic benefit as a direct result of the information presented at the workshop.
21. Anciso, Juan and Luis A. Ribera. "Vegetable Production for Small Acreage." Weslaco, Texas, October 21, 2010. Attendance: 45. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.4), information being useful (4.7), plan to adopt what was learned (4.3). A pre and post evaluation showed that there was a 71% increase in knowledge as a direct result of the workshop. In addition, 100% of respondents anticipate a positive economic benefit as a direct result of the information presented at the workshop.
22. Anciso, Juan, Joe Masabni, Marco Palma, and Luis A. Ribera. "Food Safety for Vegetable Handlers." McAllen, Texas, August 18, 2010.

Attendance: 35. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.1), information being useful (4.4), overall evaluation of training (4.6).

23. Ribera, Luis A., Juan Anciso and Vidal Saenz. “Funding for New & Transitioning Horticultural Producers.” Weslaco, Texas, July 29, 2010. Attendance: 45. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.0), information being useful (4.1), plan to adopt what was learned (4.4). A pre and post evaluation showed that there was a 96% increase in knowledge as a direct result of the workshop.

24. Ribera, Luis A., Barbara Storz, and Juan Anciso. “EQIP Funding for Organic & Transitioning Producers.” Weslaco, Texas, September 24, 2009. Attendance: 65. Evaluation summary based on 1 to 5 scale with 1 indicating poor and 5 indicating excellent. The training increased level of understanding (4.7), information being useful (4.4), overall evaluation of training (4.9), recommend this training to others (5.0).

Program Statement

As a compliment to his Extension programming as International Trade and Transportation Specialist, Dr. Ribera has undertaken applied research in farm management, risk analysis, biofuel production, climate change and transportation issues along the U.S.-Mexico border. Most of the research work that Dr. Ribera has been involved is feasibility studies of biofuel production, water use efficiency, and food safety. In his research appointment with Texas A&M Transportation Institute, Dr. Ribera has been working on adding stochastic capabilities to models developed by TTI, as well as congestions at the U.S.-Mexico border.

Summary of Major Accomplishments

- International Trade – During his time in the Lower Rio Grande Valley (LRGV), Dr. Ribera has worked on several international trade issues, such as invasive species and pest coming from Mexico, the increase in inflow of Mexican produce by truck through the LRGV and along the U.S./Mexico border, immigration labor and water issues with between Mexico and U.S. on the usage of irrigation water from the Rio Grande. From 2006 to 2008, Dr. Ribera, along with Dr. Knutson, coordinated three market integration workshops, two for the NAFTA region and one for the CAFTA region. In each workshop approximately 60 country delegates from the government, industry and academia participated. Topics covered in the workshop included barriers to trade, sanitary and phytosanitary issues, country of origin labeling, transition policies towards freer trade, building successful supply chains, among others. A policy panel closed each workshop, where policy makers from each country discussed the changes that needed to happen in order to increase trade among trading bloc members. In 2014 Dr. Ribera moved to College Station and is currently working on economics impacts of increase produce imports from Mexico, food safety, potential increase trade with Cuba, impacts of new trade agreements, mainly Trans Pacific Partnership and Trans-Atlantic Trade and Investment Partnership.

Dr. Ribera has nine international trade or trade related journal articles, three Extension publications, 12 AgriLife Centers or other publications and two book chapters. In addition, since his move to College Station, Dr. Ribera has given 20 presentations on International Trade and Transportation.

- Transportation – Dr. Ribera’s work with Texas A&M Transportation Institute (TTI) started before his relocation to College Station. The main area of collaboration was congestion on the Texas ports of entry. His work on the economic impact of increase flow of Mexican produce through Texas land ports of entry was useful to TTI researchers. Upon his arrival to College Station, Dr. Ribera immediately started working on TTI’s T.R.E.N.D.S. model, which was designed to provide transportation planners, policy makers and the general public with tool to forecast revenues and expenses for the Texas Department of Transportation. The model was widely used among Metropolitan Planning Organizations and Dr. Ribera converted the model from deterministic to stochastic. In addition, Dr. Ribera has collaborated with TTI on estimating per mile cost of transporting grains by truck and he also serve as a member of the Freight Practice Management Team.
- Renewable Energy Feasibility Analysis – Dr. Ribera has worked on several feasibility analysis of renewable energy, mainly ethanol and biodiesel production. Dr. Ribera traveled to Brazil, Argentina and Colombia several times to gather information on ethanol and biodiesel production. In addition, he worked closely with the W.R. Cowley Sugar House in the LRGV on gathering information for a feasibility study on sugarcane-based ethanol in South Texas using the Brazilian method. Over the years 13 feasibility analyses were done using a wide variety of feedstocks such as corn, sorghum, sugarcane, energy cane, miscane (miscanthus & sugarcane mix), castor oil, palm oil and algae. Dr. Ribera was the lead economist on feasibility analyses of cellulosic-based biofuel production using miscane and energy cane under four conversion processes as part of a partnership with Chevron Technology Ventures. Moreover, Dr. Ribera has also worked with Shell, BP, Abengoa, and Canergy of feasibility studies of biomass-based biofuel production. Dr. Ribera has given 57 presentations for clientele in Texas, the U.S. and overseas. He has published four journal articles, four book chapters, and 10 proceedings and extension reports on the economics of biofuels. Moreover, Dr.

Ribera has coordinated seven workshops to train county agents on the economics of renewable fuel.

Evidence of Demand for Programs

The following summarizes presentations, planning meetings and conferences covering the period from August 1, 2014 to July 28, 2021. This section is provided as an indication of the frequency and scope of applied research programming presentations, program development meetings, and conferences. All presentations involved development of handout materials resulting from applied research, except when noted. Number of attendees for each presentation or workshop for clientele is summarized in Appendix 1. Dr. Ribera delivered all presentations summarized below.
